

Professional development is a cornerstone of my practice and a commitment I make to both myself and my customers.

I am particularly passionate (and concerned) about the proliferation of online-only qualifications (where the student is never properly and personally supervised by a qualified tutor). Many of these courses claim to be certification courses that are recognised in NZ; they are often marketed through sponsored posts on social media. Because the student does not have to travel, these courses appeal to prospective students. I encourage you to read my blog post We have to talk about qualifications to assist you in understanding the importance of in-person learning.

This symbol identifies courses that I have undertaken which were conducted on-site/in-person with qualified instructors. I have also used this icon for my volunteer work which has allowed me to work alongside other animal care professionals.
